ABSTRACT

A system and method for a business computer network implemented on a large scale is disclosed. This business computer network will be a people business network meaning that it will enable employees of various companies to access their personal information in one secure environment yet yielding high speed return of data at minimal costs on the side of the employers.